HEATHER

1304

This is a very special fabric. Named in memory of Naiomi and Tyler Glasses' late sister Heather, who cherished mélange neutral colors, this wool fabric pattern draws inspiration from a Third Phase Chief's blanket. The "Third Phase," a period of hand weaving in the late 1800s, marked a transition from simple stripes to more intricate diamond shapes. Within each diamond, a four-directional cross symbolizes the Earth's four directions, reflecting the original weaving created by Naiomi and Tyler Glasses.

SADDLE BLANKET

1308

Saddle Blanket nods to one of Naiomi's designs from the Polo Ralph Lauren x Naiomi Glasses collection with a balanced geometric design of diamonds found in Navajo and other Indigenous weaving traditions, and zigzag patterns. The zigzag pattern signifies the landscape of mountains in the high desert. Saddle Blanket's simple design highlights.

SECOND PHASE

1310

The “Second Phase” represents a significant period in Navajo weaving history during the mid-1800s. During this time, “Chiefs Blankets” evolved from their original design of simple two or three colored stripes. The new pattern incorporated additional colors in rectangular shapes in the ground that intersected with the stripes, creating a more dynamic and complex design compared to the simpler patterns of the earlier phase.

STANDING CROSSES

Inspired by the natural landscape on Navajo Nation, Standing Crosses features four-directional crosses, signifying the Earth's four directions in Navajo tradition, framed by a stepped motif filled with fine stripes inspired by rock striations. A row of triangles represents elements within the natural landscape. Nodding to the natural, undyed wools favored by the Glasses siblings, this fabric features a heathered, heavier-weighted yarn and offers an organic feel.

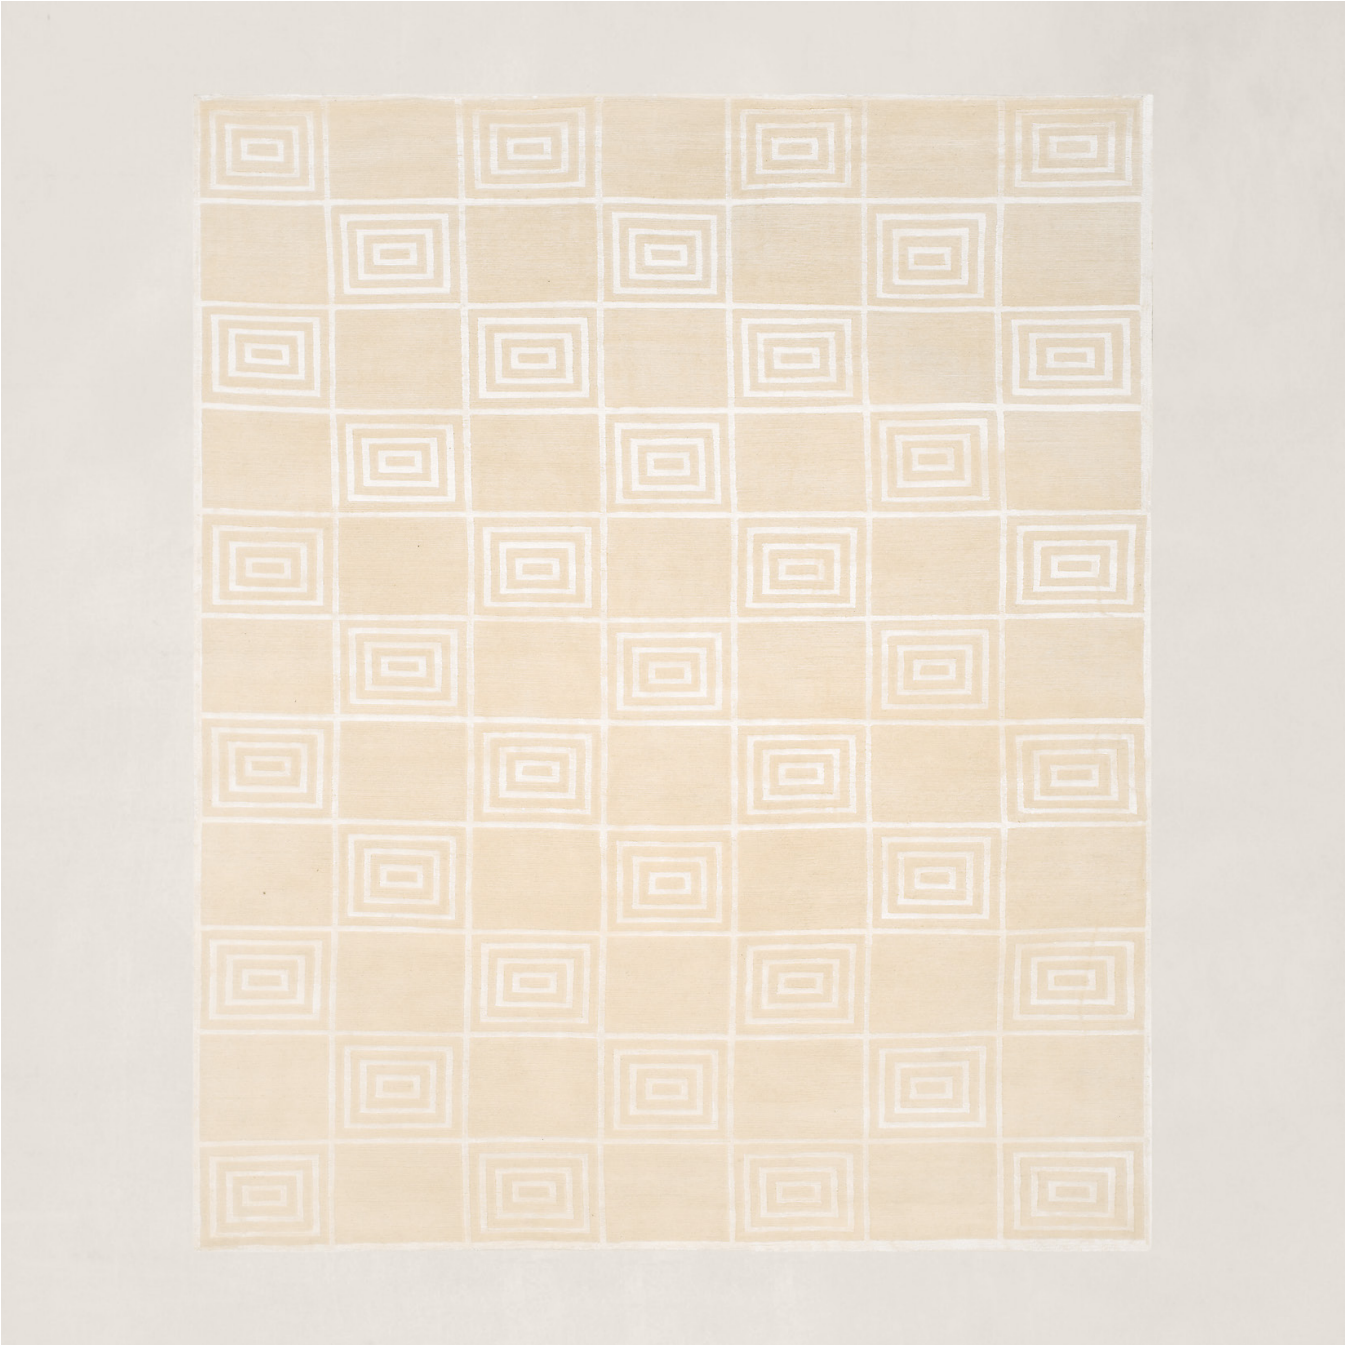
ALISTAIR TILES



1388

Hand-knotted by Nepalese weavers, Ralph Lauren's Alistair Tiles collection recalls the glamour of the Art Deco era. Each rug is made from organic viscose yarns and high-mountain wool that has been expertly spun and dyed by hand. Alternating cut and loop piles accentuate the texture and dimension of the rug's geometric motif while hand-stitched edges highlight the fine craftsmanship inherent to this collection.

REYNOLDS

1402

Crafted from hand-spun wool, Ralph Lauren's Reynolds collection is designed to faithfully re-create the free spirit and rich patina of Oushak tribal rugs a style native to Turkey in the 19th century. Knotted by hand in the tradition of nomadic weavers, the extra thick yarns and large Turkish knots yield a plush pile and comfortable underfoot. Each rug is detailed with fringe edges and specially washed to achieve a subtle sheen inspired by the lustrous finish inherent to antique Oushak rugs.

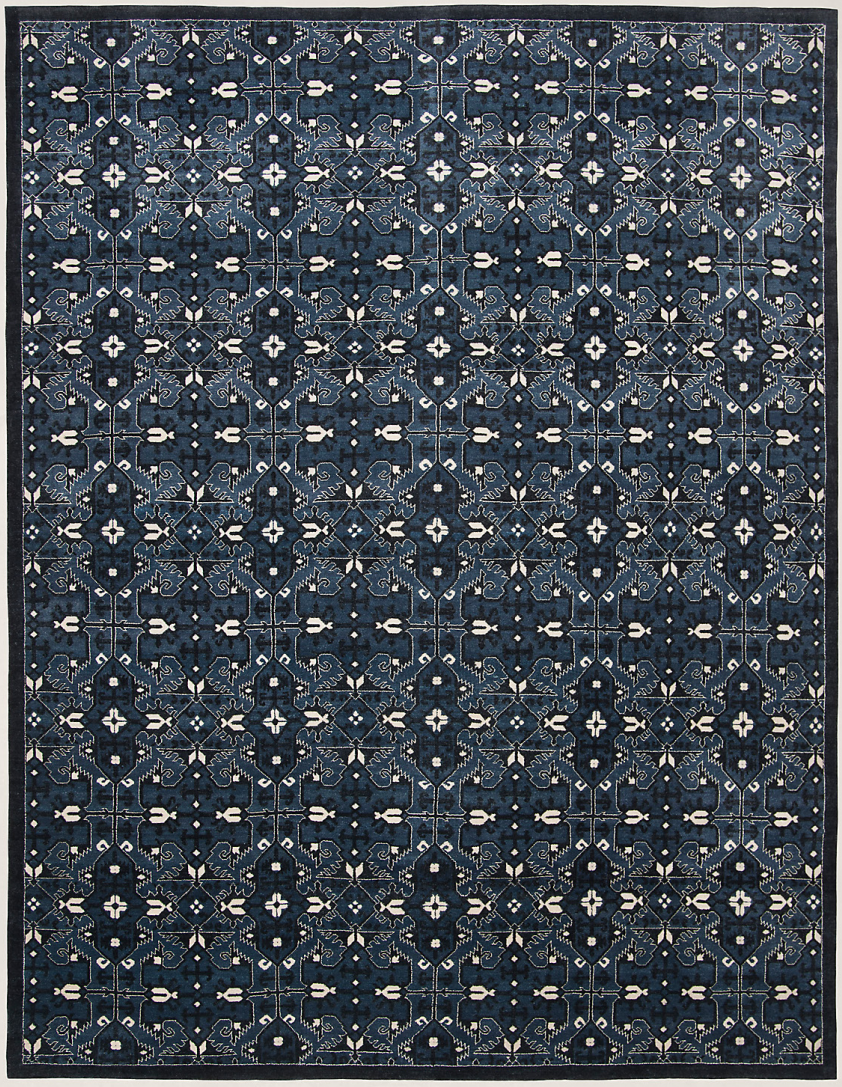
SHELDON



1408

Inspired by traditional Fair Isle knits from Scotland, Ralph Lauren's Sheldon collection showcases an exquisite pattern woven from a supple blend, including premium wool that is hand-carded and specially washed for an aged appearance. Bamboo silk and space-dyed yarns create magnificent highs and lows throughout the expertly sheared low pile. The hand-knotted construction nods to ancient nomadic techniques and employs the Persian Senneh knot, prized for its tight weave and fine detail.

BRETT STRIPE

1440

Crafted from pure wool, Ralph Lauren's Brett Stripe collection presents a Kilim-inspired flat-weave rug with casual coastal style. Undulating rows of double and single stripes enhance the artisanal appeal of this handwoven piece, which is designed with a low pile to ensure lasting durability and even wear over time.

CLIFF STRIPE

1444

Boasting the depth and texture of a traditional flat-weave rug, Ralph Lauren's Cliff Stripe collection exudes casual coastal-inspired style through its design and natural material composition. With a pattern reminiscent of a classic mattress ticking stripe, each rug is hand-knotted by master artisans and crafted from organic jute and cotton that is carefully brushed to achieve a softer hand and comfortable underfoot.

MONROE CHEVRON

1446

Inspired by the glamorous Art Deco style of the '30s and '40s, Ralph Lauren's Monroe Chevron collection is hand-knotted by master Nepalese weavers using a combination of hand-dyed, hand-spun high-mountain wool and organic viscose yarns. A mix of cut and loop pile lends texture and depth to the raised chevron motif and wide shadow stripe ground as light moves across it.

Made in collaboration with Navajo Weaver Tyler Glasses, STANDING CROSSES is inspired by the natural landscape of the Navajo Nation. The stepped diamond motifs capture the striated rock formations of the western desert, and the Four Directional Crosses centered within each diamond represents the Earths four sacred directions. Made with natural wools the open ground emphasizes the natural variations of the undyed material in keeping with the original weaving.
